Skills Maintenance and Testing (For Electrical Licence Renewal)

Course outline

Registered electricians: this non-accredited course meets the Electrical Safety Office requirements, for a registered electrician to apply for a renewal of your Electrical Licence. This course will provide you have current skills in electrical safety legislation, risk management, testing and multiple earth neutral (MEN) systems.

Who can do Skills Maintenance and Testing?

Students are required to be Trade registered Electrician or to hold a Restricted Electrical Licence prior to attending this training course.

This training course has been specifically designed for holders of a current or expired electrical licence. This course is an in-depth program aiming to refresh and update your knowledge so that you can reapply for your electrical licence, whilst ensuring that you follow safe practices and are aware of any changes within the legislation of Queensland.

What will I get from this program?

This training program is an interactive and in-depth approach for skills maintenance - electrical renewal. It is important to continue to stay on top of industry changes whilst building your knowledge further in the electrical industry. The training program will work to give you a new understanding of electrical practices, making you eligible to renew or maintain your electrical licence.

All of our trainers have been electricians for over 20 years and are still working in the industry, also enabling you to build your network and interact directly with those working alongside with you in the industry, in a non-competitive manner.

Course Duration?

You will be give some pre-course material to complete prior to training onsite, which will then be followed by a one-day training course. We provide all books and appliances required for training and offer small classes for you, so that you can work with the trainer to develop a deeper understanding and a new view of electrical work.
